Peonies

THE Chinese Peony is the queen and the most beautiful of all the hardy perennials, and no other plants are of such easy culture and give such satisfactory results.

Peonies are perfectly hardy, passing the most severe winters without injury, are strong growers, free from diseases and hurtful insects, and an established clump will grow and bloom indefinitely, getting stronger each year.

While peonies are gross feeders they will do well in any good garden soil where the water does not stand in winter but do not put any fresh manure around the roots.

The best time to plant peonies is from Sept. 1st until the ground freezes; they may be safely planted in early spring before the growth starts.

By planting the extra early varieties we have peonies in bloom from the first of May to the last days of June, ranging in color from the purest white through all the shades of pink and rose into crimson and purple garnet.

Care should be taken, to not plant the roots too deep, the buds or eyes at the base of the stem should be put about three inches below the surface of the ground.

We have been growing peonies since 1898 and now have 75,000 plants in some 600 named varieties. The plants we send out are 1 year or strong divisions that are apt to give some bloom the first year; these we grow ourselves and guarantee them true to name. Mistakes will sometimes occur and in such cases the correct varieties will be sent without extra cost.

A peony does not become established until the third year after planting, and many fine double sorts will produce a single or semi-double flower the first or second year, so judgment should be withheld until the third year after planting.

Whenever possible we have procured our stock direct from the originator and now have the largest stock of the "Hollis" peonies in the middle west, also a complete list of the Brand, Terry, Rcsenfield and Harrison peonies, besides a partial list of the Pleas productions.

Prices are for strong plants packed and delivered to the Express Company, after which our responsibility ceases.

Varieties with no price attached are in limited supply and will be sold only as the stock on hand warrants.

Japanese Peonies

The Japanese Peonies are intermediate between the single and double types, their stamens being transformed into narrow petaloids, giving to them a soft and beautiful effect. Most of them have large, cup-shaped guard petals. The form of the flowers is distinct, artistic and beautiful, while the colors are very brilliant, many flowers striped in contrasting shades.

Single Peonies

No collection is complete that does not contain some of the beautiful Single Peonies. Perhaps they are not as bold and gorgeous as the others; certainly they are among the best when considered along artistic lines. They are chaste and rare looking; they show the beautiful golden stamens which other types may conceal; and those of us who love simple things may prefer them to all other types. They are free bloomers.

Tall Bearded Irises.

Irish Germanica (German Iris, or Fleur-de-Lis)

These are all sun-lovers, and delight in a warm, well-drained situation, where the surface-creeping rhizomes can get a good baking in summer. They will thrive in almost any soil or situation except a wet one, which causes the rhizomes to rapidly decay. This is the group best known and most commonly cultivated. The flowers are the true fleur-de-lis, and they are well called the "orchids of the garden," for they fairly out rival the orchids in delicacy of structure and wide range of coloring, including the rich yellows, soft blues, intense purples and claret-reds, beautiful bronzes and pure whites, in every conceivable combination.

Iris to do best should be planted either early in the spring or during the month of August and into early September. The plants should not be planted with the crowns more than one inch below the surface. The Iris like most flowers responds readily to good cultivation and should be found in every garden.
